A Message from the Staff

Today's Gospel reading reminds me that we are never really prepared for what may come our way.

There are so many symbols in today's gospel. The bridegroom, Jesus, is delayed in arriving for the wedding feast. The virgins, who are waiting for the bridegroom to come, perhaps represent the people waiting for Christ to come. Jesus takes the virgins who are prepared with their oils into the wedding feast with him but does not admit those who are not prepared.

As I read this gospel, I kept thinking of the movie, "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," one of my all-time favorites, for many reasons. In what starts out as a perfectly normal day, an unexpected guest arrives and Spencer Tracey has to determine what decision he will make regarding his daughter and the man she wants to marry. Of course, the story has a beautiful and poignant ending, one we would all hope for!

How can we best prepare for Jesus? This is already the second Sunday in November and Advent is just three weeks away. Advent is a season of preparation so this gospel is so very timely. What can we do to prepare our families as we get ready for this beautiful and hectic holiday season? In a very short time, we will get caught up with festivities and celebrations but let us first be thankful for all of our blessings then think about how we can best prepare for the upcoming season.

Jesus reminds us that he can come at any moment and we must be prepared for him.

In Christ,

Patricia McGarvie

Today's Readings

FOCUS: God draws near to all who seek him.

Today's first reading personifies Wisdom as a woman who is sought by those who love her. In fact, if we pay careful attention to this text, there's a lot of reference to seeking. Perhaps the question that we might ask is, who is doing the seeking? At first glace, it seems like people are the ones seeking after wisdom. And yet, Wisdom is described as a gracious woman who hastens to make herself known and who sits by the gate of those who seek her. The passage even says that Wisdom herself makes her rounds, seeking those worthy of her, appearing to them on their way and meeting them with all solicitude.

It would seem, then, that Wisdom is not only sought; she is also the one who seeks. The mystery revealed here is that our search for Wisdom, for God, is always a response to God's prior search for us. Because he draws near, we can seek him; because he seeks us, our seeking is never in vain.

And yet, we must search. As we turn to the Gospel, we hear a parable about five wise virgins who prepare themselves, watching for the bridegroom's return. In a word, they are seeking the bridegroom. These virgins are the ones who diligently prepare their lamps and, when the bridegroom returns, are ushered into the wedding feast with him. In contrast, the five foolish virgins become drowsy and fall asleep, and are caught unprepared when the bridegroom returns. To them, the bridegroom says, Amen, I say to you, I do not know you.

With these two readings, the Church is inviting us to consider the necessity that we, too, actively seek the Lord. This requires a conscious response from us; it is not passive. We must desire a relationship with Christ and actively seek him by preparing our hearts for his coming.

When we are seeking something we really desire, our hearts experience longing. One sign that ourspiritual life needs renewal, that our "oil" has run out, is when our desire for the Lord has grown weak or dormant. Today's psalm invites us to take as our own the words of King David: O God, you are my God whom I seek; for you my flesh pines and my soul thirsts like the earth, parched, lifeless and without water. If we find ourselves in a place where our thirst for earthly things is greater than the Lord, then we must ask him to awaken us from our spiritual slumber, that he may give us the grace to rekindle in us the flame that burns for love of him.

The good news is that our God doesn't play "hard to get." Just as Lady Wisdom in our first reading draws near to those who seek her, the Lord comes to us in the Eucharist, drawing near to all who seek him with sincerity and faith. And all who sincerely seek the Lord will find a place at his heavenly banquet.

NO PROBLEM!

The teenagers of the parish are more than willing to finish it off for you! Please drop off any candy at either the rectory office or the youth center. We can use it for our "candy basket" in the youth center! Chips, cookies, or other goodies you may have left over are also accepted.
